

Hi!! My name is Kim Tancailles Pascua from batch WD43P KodeBrew, currently unemployed because I resigned from my previous work in a semi-con company here in Pampanga to take risks to become a freelancer . I'm an undergraduate student of Bachelor of Science in Business Administration Major in Financial Management in Tarlac State University. My hobbies are watching movies, playing mobile games and sometimes watching youtube and tiktok for informational purposes.

I am currently waiting for my brother's client so I got bored and then one day while watching YouTube, I saw Mr. John Michael Baldonado, a former student who became a software engineer at the age of 20. I was inspired so I watched the whole video and learned that KodeGo will help you to become a full stack web developer in a matter of 12 weeks (16 weeks for part time students like me). I enrolled hoping to learn about coding and hoping to land a job after I finish the bootcamp while waiting for a job that my brother will hand over to me as a freelancer. That's why I resigned from my previous job.

Of Course my family is my number one motivation when I enrolled in this course. I was the breadwinner for many years because my father was unable to find a job because we were both caught in an accident last November 2017 so he can't walk straight because of his broken leg. I also want to end my curiosity about coding, making my own website and some stuff like that for me to have the skills for me to use when applying to other jobs on the internet.

For me, one of my greatest achievements in life was to be a Team Leader in our company and was able to work with different people and have a peaceful working environment. It may sound too shallow but finding peace in a toxic environment is gold. I also learned different skills that someday I can apply on real life
